Progress made its debut in Pacific Heights somewhere around 11 a.m. on Wednesday, August 10, when the big "Cat" took its first nip of the earth on the site of our future Skyline College of San Bruno.

Our homes that line Sheryl Drive and the bottom part of Fasman Drive got the first sound of powerful motors and the first whiff of dust as the "Cats" swung around over and over again a few feet from our fences. You can't help watching all the activity with mixed emotions. You're delighted that the college is coming and especially to your community and to your city, but you know that you are going to have to put up with a couple of years of dust and noise no matter how hard the contractor tries to control both.

The dogs are yapping continuously at the "intruders" to their homes. The children are saddened as their caves, their exploration areas, and their polliwog and snake haunts become never more. The parents realize it is one more open area to become covered with buildings although we are fortunate that only nine acres of the 110 will house buildings-the remaining acreage will be used for parking, athletic fields, and plenty of landscaping.

In fact, the people residing near the College Drive entrance to the college will only see buildings, athletic fields and a campus rimmed with trees and other landscaping-no "sea of cars" will be visible since parking will be on the ocean side of the site.

We welcome the Skyline College with open arms but hope they will excuse a tear or two for the country landscape that will never be ours again.
